Joy is the rainbow-lollipop-big-as-your-face that daddy brings you to lick on and bite at and hide behind and pet the cat with . . .

Take a bath, says a mother tugging at your sticky hands and scowling at her headache

and it's tied with a big gay ribbon at its throat and you say it's a necktie and daddy says it's a noose and you giggle and mama says it's a marriage and you don't . . .

that daddy brings you
but it gives you a tummy ache so you throw up resplendently and contemplate
Joy
