Iowa State Veterinarian
SCAVMA Outstanding Service Awards

By Jere Detter*

The SCAVMA Outstanding Service Award is given each year to recognize any person or persons who have performed outstanding service or contributions to veterinary students outside the normal curriculum. This year three faculty members and one veterinary student received this award.

Dr. Paul Simoens was a visiting Assistant Professor in the Department of Anatomy for the 79-80 school term. He came here on leave from his teaching duties as Assistant Professor in the Department of Veterinary Anatomy and Histology, College of Veterinary Medicine at the State University of Ghent in Brugge, Belgium. He was a Candidate of Veterinary Medicine at this university in 1973 and received his Doctorate degree in Veterinary Medicine in 1976 after which he accepted his teaching position there. While at ISU, he helped teach histology and gross anatomy to the first year vet students.

Dr. Larry L. Jackson is currently an Associate Professor in the Veterinary Clinical Sciences Department at the ISU Veterinary College. He received his DVM degree from Michigan in 1966 and became an instructor in the VCS Department in 1968 while working on his MS degree. Dr. Jackson finished this degree in 1971 and was promoted to an Assistant Professor. In 1976 Dr. Jackson was raised to the position of Associate Professor and is currently teaching Veterinary Clinical Anesthesiology.

* Mr. Detter is a third year student in the College of Veterinary Medicine, ISU.
Dr. Roger Hogle has been at ISU for quite some time, both as a student and as a faculty member. He earned his DVM degree here in 1958. After five years in a large animal practice in La Porte City, Iowa, Dr. Hogle returned to the College of Veterinary Medicine as a microbiology instructor while working on his Master's Degree. He completed his MS in Veterinary Bacteriology in 1967 and was subsequently Board Certified as a Diplomat of the American College of Veterinary Microbiologists in 1968. Dr. Hogle has twice been a recipient of the Norden Distinguished Teacher Award (67,74), has received the University Outstanding Teacher Award (71), and is past president of the Iowa Veterinary Medical Association (79). Currently his duties are split between Professor of Microbiology, where he teaches Infectious Diseases and Preventive Medicine to the third year students, and as Assistant Dean of the College of Veterinary Medicine. Dr. Hogle was honored for his help with the SCAVMA during the past year.

Gaylen Huff is currently a fourth year student in the College of Veterinary Medicine. His interest at this time is mainly large animal medicine and after graduation he intends to join a mixed practice in a midsized midwestern town. Gaylen and his wife Barbara have two children, Shelley (6) and Jason (8). Gaylen received this award for his help in the purchase of the Veterinary Instrument and Supply Co. by the SCAVMA.
Draper Receives 1980 Norden Distinguished Teacher Award
by Jere Detter

Dr. Donald Draper was this year's recipient of the Norden Distinguished Teacher Award. This award is given every year by Norden Laboratories to a faculty member for his/her contribution to Veterinary education. With the award comes a plaque and a check in the amount of four hundred dollars.

Dr. Draper received his DVM degree from Iowa State University in 1966 after which he matriculated to the University of Missouri where he completed his MS (69) and PhD (71). He returned to ISU in the fall of 71, accepting a position as Assistant Professor in the Department of Anatomy. In his professional teaching career Dr. Draper has taught all areas of anatomy in the veterinary curriculum and in 1974 was promoted to an Associate Professor in the Anatomy Department. Receiving this award follows several years of progressive teaching for Dr. Draper. He was awarded a University Innovative Teaching Grant in 1972 and has produced a large number of autotutorial programs in several media forms. Besides an educational role, Dr. Draper has been involved in several major areas of research including nutrition, spinal dysraphism, and currently, muscle motor point stimulation and Porcine Stress Syndrome. Dr. Draper resides in the Ames, Iowa area with his wife Dianne, who is an Associate Professor of Child Development at ISU, and their daughter Kirsten.

ALUMNI

Class of 1960

After 13 years of small animal practice in southern California, Dr. Elden W. Bainbridge has gone into real estate development and management on a full-time basis. He and his wife Sharon have four children: Dwight, Brian, Todd, and Marla. The Bainbridges now live in Anaheim, California.

Now living in New Haven, Missouri is Dr. Frederick D. Branco, his wife Shirley, and their two children, David, and Steve. Dr. Branco is presently employed by the U.S.D.A., for whom he had also worked for in Oklahoma and Minnesota. Before this, Dr. Branco was involved in a small animal practice for eight years in Kansas City, Missouri.

Dr. James L. Carpenter is currently involved in the teaching of residents and
