Student Cartoonist

Dale Polson, a member of the Class of '82, has been interested in drawing since his high school days. What began as inspirational doodling in his high school U.S. History class has now evolved into short cartoon strips. During his undergraduate years at North West College in Orange City, Iowa, Dale developed his main character, 'Floyd'. Upon entrance into veterinary school, Dale began to place Floyd in various vet school related activities in the form of cartoon strips. Some have been printed in the INTERVET publication for many students to read and enjoy. We have taken the opportunity here to briefly introduce Dale to you as well as some of his work for your enjoyment. We hope to include more of Dale's cartoons and drawings in future issues of the ISU Veterinarian.

by Jere Detter*

As life lasted and health remained, our Winter quarter came to a close with everyone breathing a sigh of relief. The Class of '82 and their spouses sojourned at the Sheridan Hotel in Kalamazoo, Michigan from February 26th to the 28th enjoying the hospitality of the Upjohn Company. For the mere cost of a bus ticket and a little wear and tear on the padded portion of our "designer" jeans, we were all treated to plenty of good food, good spirits, and a modicum of physical exercise on the turf, with the weights, or in the pool. Theater tickets were provided and many enjoyed a good movie or two during the weekend.

The Upjohn people had us on a busy schedule Friday, as they escorted us on a tour of their facilities. The day's events included breakfast at seven o'clock and on the bus by eight. An orientation followed our arrival at the plant, with a coffee break soon after. Then it was off to tour the plant followed by a big lunch. Next, a lecture on Upjohn's Research and Development programs followed by another coffee break. At this point, some chose to merely sit and bemoan the fact that they were still full from the previous meals and snacks. Last of all, a trip through some of the research buildings, then back to the hotel for the happy hour and steak dinner (for those who were still eating). Our thanks to the Upjohn Company for the splendid accommodations and their hospitality during our stay.
