"Cats are always kittens"

Kim E. Crowe
Iowa State University

Follow this and additional works at: https://lib.dr.iastate.edu/iowastate_veterinarian
Part of the Poetry Commons, and the Veterinary Medicine Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://lib.dr.iastate.edu/iowastate_veterinarian/vol56/iss2/13

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Journals at Iowa State University Digital Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in Iowa State University Veterinarian by an authorized editor of Iowa State University Digital Repository. For more information, please contact digirep@iastate.edu.
Cats are always kittens
more than people are always children.
While you are sleeping,
they'll be outside, swiftly creeping Running, leaping, chasing bugs finding friends and climbing rugs or they’ll run inside and scamper slowly up the halls doing flip-flops, chasing tails or toys and dancing into walls;
outside again, to slither slyly through the grass Half-climbing trees, up on the roof, ...sunrise is chasing fast.

In the morning you will find him curled up on the couch and say “Why you furry little sleepy-head, you couldn’t catch a mouse!”
The kitten inside purrs as you pet him and he smiles a happy sigh
The cat you love lowers his head, and closes both his eyes.

Kim E. Crowe, Class of 1995
ISU College of Veterinary Medicine